

MHAHS 40th Anniversary RETROSPECTIVE

Inspired by a grade school teacher, a 4-H leader, and school trips, Brian Bigler started a nature trail and museum on the family farm in the early 1970s. In 1973, while working in the school library, senior Bigler had a chance encounter with the 1961 Centennial History of Mount Horeb. "I remember looking at the old photos of Mount Horeb for hours," he reminisces, "and so after graduation I gave up the family farm museum and approached local librarian Gladys Martin with the idea of a local historical society." Martin began a search for individuals in the community she thought would make a good core group and came up with a Wisconsin Historical Society curator, an attorney, and community individuals with long and short roots in the area's history.

The first meeting was held on a snowy evening in March 1975 at the Mount Horeb Public Library with about fifteen enthusiastic people in attendance. With "Robert's Rules of Order" in hand (a present from Martin), Brian was given the job of acting president. Other who have since served in this role include first elected President Bob Pekowsky, Richard Horn and Karen Brickner. After the sudden death of Karen Brickner in 1995, Brian took over the presidency of the organization until October of 2014, when current President Tony Zalucha stepped into the role.

The first Board of Directors set the tone of the organization, and it was decided to mark the school district as the Society's collecting boundary and Mount Horeb Area Historical Society was chosen as the official name. The group incorporated with the Wisconsin Historical Society in June of 1975. An immediate search for museum space took precedence with temporary exhibits held at the State Bank of Mount Horeb and the library. In 1977 the Society was given use of the third floor of the Mount Horeb Municipal Building where it established its first museum. From the beginning the collections effort not only included historic objects, but contemporary history as well, a practice that gained the Historical Society a cutting edge reputation amongst regional historical societies and a special feature in Mary Bergin's book "Sidetracked in Wisconsin."

By 1995 through the generosity of hundreds of individuals the Society outgrew its 4,500 square foot space in the Municipal Building. In 1996 the Museum was moved to its present location on South Second Street. "Alva Webber's Small Town Wisconsin," the premier exhibit, drew more than 300 visitors during its two day opening.

Through the years the Society has tackled cutting-edge themes and integrated unique interpretive formats, like "Sympathy & Sorrow: Victorian Mourning Customs" which featured a funeral in a Victorian era parlor, and an exploration of Sedition in another exhibition that revealed the darker side of history. These efforts garnered the Society the highest awards bestowed by the Wisconsin Historical Society and have brought attention from near and far.

From the beginning, countless authors, researchers and individuals have relied on the Society's extensive holdings of artifacts—now numbering more than 20,000—and an equally wide-ranging collection of photographs. (cont. on page 2)

The Mount Horeb Area Historical Society

("RETROSPECTIVE" cont. from front) The archive is utilized by genealogists and professional and amateur historians who are tracing their roots, researching their home or business, or even looking to add historic photos to their walls. The Society has published three books, written numerous articles on area history and contributed to a variety of other works. In addition to these tireless efforts, the Society, its volunteers and staff have provided invaluable service to local historical societies seeking information and instruction on such diverse topics as starting an organization, to exhibit fabrication and proper collections storage practices.

The Historical Society has assisted with several regional milestones that include Mount Horeb's 125th and 150th anniversaries, and similar celebrations in Mount Vernon, Blue Mounds and Springdale.

From its inception the Historical Society has relied on public support for its operation budget. Numerous estate remnant, bake sales, concerts, raffles, and auctions have been held.

In 1995, Harold Peterson was the first to list the Historical Society in his estate planning and several important gifts have followed. A generous bequest by Louise Kindland in 2000 allowed the Society to restore the Museum building's historic facade. A large bequest by Delma Woodburn in 2001 supplied the seed money for the purchase of land for the new Southwestern Dane County Heritage Center. In recent years small and large bequests from donors and foundations have advanced the fundraising for the planned Heritage Center and have aided the Society's collections. The continuation of such bequests in the future will help ensure that the Society will be able to continue its topnotch programing and preservation efforts.

In 1998 the Society launched its first website which in recent years has grown to include on-line resources that rival institutions with much larger resources.

The original October 9, 1975 document, signed by then, and still, Wisconsin Secretary of State Douglas La Follette accepting the Articles of Incorporation of the brand new Mount Horeb Area Historical Society.

In 2005 Laurie Boyden was hired as the first paid employee and in winter of 2014 Destinee Udelhoven, the organization's first Executive Director began working fulltime.

Through these forty years the Society has received little in state or public funding and has relied on hundreds of dedicated donors and volunteers to carry out our mission of protecting and sharing the stories of the people, places and events of southwestern Dane County. The Mount Horeb Area Historical Society thanks you for helping us reach this milestone, and looks forward to another forty years of community supported success!

MHAHS'S "Year of the Anniversary"

The Mount Horeb Area Historical Society has declared 2015 "The Year of the Anniversary." In association with this theme, we will soon be unveiling a special exhibit featuring our own 40 years of collecting and sharing the history of Mount Horeb. We are also planning a partner event honoring the 75th anniversary of the opening of The Cave of the Mounds, and a June Civil War weekend commemorating the 150th anniversary of the end of this momentous conflict and the public launch of a new online Civil War research database. (Stay tuned for more information about these and other Society efforts.) Are you or your business celebrating an anniversary in 2015? Let us know about it!

MHAHS WELCOMES NEW EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

My name is Destinee Udelhoven and, as of December 12, 2014, I am proud to state that I am your new Director at the Mount Horeb Area Historical Society.

To quickly cover those mundane details that you probably aren't really interested in anyways: my husband, Wade works at Agrace Hospice in Fitchburg and is originally from Platteville; we have two kids—Max, 6, and Mia, 1; I grew up in South Dakota on a small dairy farm, met my husband in graduate school in North Carolina, and have formerly worked here in Wisconsin at the Sauk County Historical Society and Portage's Historic Indian Agency House. If you are curious about anything else, call me; as most folks will tell you, I'm not one to turn down a chat.

If I was a sports person I'd craft some sort of witty and currently relevant analogy about a coach who came aboard already poised for success because of the already talented and extremely passionate team in place at his/her arrival. But a sports person I am not, so let me just say that I walked into a support system made up of a truly amazing assortment of tireless volunteers and history enthusiasts who are revved up and ready to move forward. With their passion and institutional knowledge as a foundation for my efforts, our vision for increased programming, strengthened ties with area historical and educational entities, and a new community-centered facility will become reality.

In closing, I look forward to this new adventure of living and working in a region steeped in an awesome mixture of natural and human history. And I want to meet YOU! Reach me at (608) 437-6486 or by email at mthorebhistory@mhtc.net —and let's talk some history!

Udelhoven and baby bovine/ daughter Mia.

New Exhibit to Highlight Extraordinary Depth of Society's Collection

An exhibit featuring the Historical Society's long dedication to collecting the tangible history of Southwestern Dane County will be featured in the Museum's foyer for the 2015 season.

Society staff and volunteers are gathering unique items from the Museum's holdings that relate to the social, cultural and technological influences that have shaped the region's environs. The items will be both common and rare and will include pieces from the archive, textile, photograph,

This tiny De Laval advertising piece, collected by the Society in 1977, is a small, yet potent example of area history—think the mechanization of family farms, community cheese factories, 4-H and County Fairs, and so much more. For 40 years, the Society has recognized the ability of the artifact for both preserving the physical remnants of history and providing a tangible and meaningful link to the past.

One case will feature all the inventions from decades past that can now be found on an individual's cell phone. Another will contain examples of objects that reflect pop cultural and socializing influences on the area's youth from the beginning to the end of the 20th century. There will be examples of art and folk objects, the collecting of contemporary history, costume and textiles and rare pieces from the archive that include a court case over the future site of Madison, rare land deeds, and numerous photographs.

As a special bonus one of the very first exhibits that the Society presented at the State Bank of Mount Horeb in 1975 will be recreated.

The exhibit will premiere at the Museum in late April.

Spotlight on Donations

This gorgeously preserved silk U.S. flag, donated by the Mount Horeb G.A.R. Post 1885 (also known as the "Ren Dixon" Post) in June 2014 has 43 stars— indicating a manufacture date of 1890. The Grand Army of the Republic was established as a volunteer assemblage of men who had served in the Civil War and a forerunner of the modern American Veterans association. 2015 marks the 150th anniversary of the end of the Civil War.

A young museum-goer shows off her imaginatively decorated Popsicle sled, crafted during the Society's first annual "Winter Weekend," held at the Mount Horeb Area Museum on January 30 through February 01 in conjunction with the Village's eclectic and popular Scandihoovian Festival. Check out our Facebook page for more fun snapshots of this event, and catch up on other Society news and happenings.

Heritage Center UPDATE

This community-driven project continues the process of vision to reality.

The Fundraising Committee is pleased to announce that they closed out 2014 with a total to date of approximately $840,000 in cash and pledges invested by people and businesses like YOU! (For a complete listing of this year's donors, see the "2014 Donor Report" in this newsletter.) That is certainly something to crow about!

But, of course, we still need to keep this momentum of caring, passion and generosity moving. In 2015, the Society will seek additional individual and corporate donations and bricks-and-mortar grants to help us finance the construction of your Heritage Center and the vital endowment dollars needed to ensure its future sustainability. The Center will serve a wide population, and we need assistance in finding innovative ways to secure the financial backing of all our future constituents. To this end, the Society is conducting a review of potential funding sources to make sure we are shaking all the right trees and barking up all the right alleys.

Speaking of bricks-and-mortar, the Building Committee recently contracted with local Premier Building Solutions to help the Society finalize the building plans and begin the process of seeking out the most cost effective methods of meeting our goal of a world-class public history facility. We are pleased to be able to work with these Dane County natives with a reputation for excellence.

In addition, new Executive Director Destinee Udelhoven is currently working with preservation consultants, Peter Dajevskis and Ann Clausen of Interpretive Solutions (whose impressive resume includes work with Harpers Ferry, New York Public Library and Wisconsin-endeavor, the Fox-Wisconsin Heritage Parkway), who will guide a confirmation process of the interior functions and space usage. This review will be based on the Society's needs and financial capabilities, public input gathered at the Public Information-Gathering sessions (see article on back page), and the goal of eventual American Alliance of Museum accreditation—the gold seal of the museum world.
